

TEN CRITERIA FOR EVALUATING INVESTIGATION REPORTS

This checklist identifies the 10 essential features of an effective investigation report.

It can be referred to by organisations when determining the quality of their reports.

✓ The investigation achieved its purpose

The investigation achieved its purpose within the scope defined in the client-provided terms of reference and followed applicable policies and procedures

✓ The process was thorough

The investigator made all necessary enquiries, via a combination of document review and interviews

✓ Findings are evidence based

The findings of fact and the reasons for those findings were sound and evidence-based

✓ Valid reasoning for certain actions

The reasons the investigator did or did not pursue any lines of enquiry that came to light during the investigation were clearly articulated

✓ All parties were treated fairly

The investigation was fair to all parties, and the respondent was:

- Advised in writing of the allegations against them and the particulars of those allegations
- Given the opportunity to respond to the allegations in person and/or in writing
- Given a fair and unbiased hearing

✓ Findings are clear

The report concludes whether the allegations were substantiated or not substantiated and provides sufficient information to support such conclusions

✓ Mitigating circumstances are explained

Any mitigating circumstances associated with the findings are described and explained, which the delegated decision maker can defer to when determining future action

✓ Any delays are explained

The reason for any delays that occurred during the investigation are clearly set out, noting that such delays should have been brought to the client's attention during the investigation

✓ Supporting documents are included

All witness statements or interview transcripts and documentary evidence are attached to the report

✓ Structure & Quality Assurance

A good quality investigation report:

- Is logically structured, concise and grammatically correctIncludes a brief executive summary
- Includes a brief narrative describing the circumstances that led to the investigation
- Refers to the relevant sections of the organisation's code of conduct or policies that have been breached
- Is peer-reviewed
- Includes a list of Attachments comprising all relevant documents, interview transcripts and other artefacts referred to in the report
